the nation, so that our country can become a world leader again. Sunil Ambekar said that we need to be restrained and in moderation and plan properly and work. Our nation is ancient, our nation is eternal and the history of the country is glorious. We need to learn from the past and move on. He said that discourse is a continuous process, our task is to take forward the discussion of the society in the interest of the nation. Along with education, it is necessary to have a culture in every person in the society. Educational institutions like Vidya Bharati are creating a young generation who are dying for the country, full of patriotism with culture-oriented education. It is very important for us to have knowledge of current affairs. To avoid conspiracies going on in the country to serve political interests, we have to reach factual and correct information to the people. For this, the organizations working in the interest of the nation will have to come forward. Director General, Indian Institute of Mass Communication, New Delhi, Prof. Sanjay Dwivedi said that we need to make social media literate. In today's modern era, we have to move step by step from the world and keep our culture and tradition safe and protected. In such a situation, the role of a big organization like Vidya Bharati increases. In the present environment, it is the responsibility of the teachers to communicate better to the children with proper messages, so that our society can get the right direction.

Nadeem, editor of Nav Bharat Times, discussed in detail the working pattern of print media. He said that communication for information should be good. We should focus on listening more than speaking. Dainik Jagran editor Ashutosh Shukla said that this is a time of clash among civilizations. Let us keep our point with logic from the Indian point of view and bring the perspective of history in front of the society. Change cannot be brought by merely reading or opposing history, we have to be strong ideologically and technically and put forward reasoned points.

Banki River: A Cause Of Concern : Let's Save The River And Make It Alive!

Vidya Bharati Alumni, Amit Ranjan Sinha, Gathers 20000 People To Save The Fast Shrinking Banki River

Amit Ranjan Sinha, alumnus of Saraswati Shishu Mandir Jashpur Nagar, is running a conservation campaign to save the existence of Banki river, which is called the lifeline of Jashpur. Banki River originates from a place called Sitonga, which is at a little distance from Jashpur. The 18 kilometer long river, which is flowing from village Sitonga near district headquarter Jashpur to village Neemgaon near Jharkhand border of Jashpur, is fast losing its existence due to land encroachment.

“Since few years people started occupying the land on the banks of the river and started cutting trees and diverting the river. Due to this the river is slowly shrinking and is on the verge of drying up completely”, mentioned Amit.

Amit discussed this issue with his 3 to 4 close friends and they held a meeting on 11th May. They decided to run a conservation program to save the existence of the Banki River, which is called the lifeline of the city of Jashpur. On the banks of this river, Jashpur was settled and grew during the princely period. Today the condition of this river is very pitiful. At a distance of a few km from the point of origin, the nature of the river is like a drain. Somewhere the river is 1 meter wide and somewhere even lesser. It is a matter of concern for all.

“We 3 – 4 people did a meeting and made a roadmap for a future action plan. First, we decided upon a date and on that day we started spreading awareness through social media. We requested people to gather at a certain place. We also invited the Collector to join us”, recalled Amit.

Slowly people started joining the campaign and it took a huge form and became a movement to save the River. “Our campaign today has taken such a big form that 500 to 1000 people come every day and work to save this river” shared Amit. “So far 20000 people have got involved in just 15 days. New people come every day. From 3-year-old children to 80-year-old men, they all come here and work according to their ability. People from the Sangh Parivaar are also helping us”, mentioned Amit. The Banki River is 18 km long. Amit mentions that it may not be possible for them to widen the entire stretch. So they have selected particular areas and started working there first. “

We are going and working first at the places where there is more problem. Some areas which were less than a meter, we have made it 20 meters wide now”, shared Amit. He also shared that there are a total of 11 dams on this river. They are also clearing these dams so that the water does not stagnate anywhere. “We have bathed and played in this river in our childhood. We have fond memories of our childhood with this river, so how could we let it die like this”, shared an emotional Amit. The campaign has intensified to save the fast shrinking Banki river and people are continuously joining hands with Amit.
